The reliance of the public and the business community on sound financial reporting and advice on business affairs imposes on the accounting profession an obligation to maintain high standards of technical competence, morality and integrity. To this end, a certified public accountant or licensed public accountant shall at all times maintain independence of thought and action, hold the affairs of his or her clients in strict confidence, strive continuously to improve his or her professional skills, observe generally accepted standards of profession, promote sound and informative financial reporting, uphold the dignity and honor of the accounting profession, and maintain high standards of personal conduct. Acceptance of licensure as a certified public accountant or licensed public accountant implies that the licensee has assumed an obligation to be diligent in the performance of professional service, and fair and honest in relations with clients, fellow practitioners and the public, and has a proper appreciation of his or her duties to the community and state. In recognition thereof the board has promulgated Rules of professional conduct, which each licensee agrees to regard as binding. (7-1-93)

03. Rules. These Rules do not comprise all acts that may be considered incompatible with the obligations and responsibilities imposed by professional status or discreditable or harmful even though not specifically mentioned or described in the Rules. profession in the country in which the licensee is practicing. However, where a licensee's name is associated with financial statements in such a manner as to imply that the licensee is acting as an independent public accountant and under circumstances that would entitle the reader to assume that United States practices were followed, the licensee must comply with the requirements of Rules 405, 406, and 407. (7-1-93)
