The counselor, at this time, will initiate a counseling relationship that will last throughout the course of the individual's contact with the Commission for the Blind, designated to accomplish the client's successful adjustment to his/her situation. (1-5-87)
 - b. At appropriate times during the vocational rehabilitation process, referral will be made to other agencies that might provide useful services. (1-5-87)
 - c. Counseling and guidance will be offered to family members and other individuals regarding blindness when it is determined that such assistance will be beneficial to the client. (1-5-87)

02. Physical and Mental Restoration. After making a determination that the condition is stable or slowly progressive, the Commission for the Blind will provide physical and/or mental restoration services that will enhance the client's rehabilitation potential. Of primary concern is the effect the service will have on the individual reaching a suitable vocational objective. (1-5-87)

a. Although determined medically advisable, the Commission for the Blind must view these services from a vocational point and it is, therefore, recognized that not all services stated to be medically desirable would be provided. Services provided include (but are not limited to) eye surgery, hearing aids, corrective surgery, prosthetic devices, and/or psychological or psychiatric services. (1-5-87)

b. In dealing with individuals who have multiple physical disabilities, the Commission for the Blind will carefully evaluate the vocational handicap caused by the physical disability other than blindness or mental disability and, if appropriate, make referral to other agencies. (1-5-87)

c. In cases where there exists a reasonable likelihood that the services of the Commission for the Blind will benefit the person in terms of employability, those recommendations will be reviewed by the agency medical consultant. (1-5-87)

03. Vocational Training. The Commission for the Blind will provide or facilitate the provision of such vocational training as is necessary for the client to reach the jointly agreed upon vocational goal stated in the client's individualized written rehabilitation plan within the following guidelines: (1-5-87)

b. Training in institutions of higher learning will be provided to the level that ordinary entry into the selected vocational field is made. (1-5-87)

c. Training in universities, colleges, vocational schools or technical institutes will take place within the state of Idaho unless it can be shown that training that would allow the client equal employment opportunities is not available within the State. 04. Orientation and Adjustment Center Training. The Commission for the Blind will operate and maintain an Orientation and Adjustment Center for the blind of the State and for those persons for whom, through joint planning, it is determined that the Orientation and Adjustment Center is the most suitable resource for prevocational or vocational training. The primary focus of this center will be to develop proper attitudes about blindness in the student. Hand-in-hand with this emphasis will be training in such skill areas as the long cane method of travel, Braille, typing, home economics, industrial arts, sewing and abacus. Essential to the student's development will be an understanding of the social and vocational attitudes about blindness and an awareness of how to cope with problems which will arise by reason of the negative social and vocational attitudes about blind individuals. (1-5-87)

05. Home Instruction. Alternative training in the areas described above is also available through the home teaching program of the Commission for the Blind for those persons who do not attend the Orientation and Adjustment Center. (1-5-87)

06. Training Tools and Materials. The Commission for the Blind will provide to the client books, tools and other training materials as agreed to through joint planning by the counselor and client. Major pieces of equipment, such as closed circuit television magnifying systems, sensory conversion systems such as Versa Brailers, computers with voice output, etc., will not be assigned to an individual nor a training program, but rather will be assigned to the training facility and utilized by the maximum number of clients of the Commission for the Blind attending that facility. (1-5-87)

07. Maintenance. Maintenance is a supportive service of the Commission for the Blind provided to allow clients to derive the full benefit of other vocational rehabilitation services. It can be provided at any time during the rehabilitation process in conjunction with other vocational rehabilitation services. The provision of maintenance will be part of the services outlined in the individualized written rehabilitation plan. If not, a memo outlining the provision of maintenance and related services will be prepared for the case file. As a supportive service, maintenance cannot be provided unless other services, excluding counseling and guidance, are being provided concurrently. The amount of maintenance will be determined by the circumstances of each client and will be governed by the following: (1-5-87)

a. Maintenance payments may be used to cover the cost of food, shelter, clothing and other subsistence expenses. (1-5-87)

b. Maintenance should not exceed the amount of increased expense to a client caused by engaging in a rehabilitation program. (1-5-87)

c. When maintenance exceeds the cost of subsistence expenses determined by other public programs (i.e., Health and Welfare and SSI), a full explanation will appear on the individualized written rehabilitation plan or in the case dictation. (1-5-87)

d. When providing maintenance for a client to meet subsistence expenses while in a travel status, the amount will not exceed the amount provided to State employees. (1-5-87)

e. Maintenance will be provided only following a financial needs determination and after a thorough search for similar benefits has been made. (1-5-87)

08. Transportation. The Commission for the Blind will pay for transportation, including per diem, while in travel status that is necessary for a client to receive diagnostic or other rehabilitation services except maintenance. The Commission for the Blind will pay for, when deemed necessary by the client and counselor, the transportation expenses of one attendant to travel with a client. Transportation may include relocation and moving expenses necessary for achieving a vocational rehabilitation objective. (1-5-87)

09. Services to Family Members. The Commission for the Blind will provide services to the family members of a client after a determination has been made that such services are necessary to the vocational rehabilitation of the client. These services may be, but are not limited to the following: transportation, care of infants and children, counseling, etc. (1-5-87)

10. Interpreter Services for the Deaf. The Commission for the Blind will provide interpreter service, including tactile interpreting for deaf-blind individuals, to all individuals in need of such services in order to take full advantage of diagnostic or rehabilitation services. Where appropriate, the assistance of staff of other agencies and/or facilities will be secured to assist in the rehabilitation of deaf-blind individuals. (1-5-87)

11. Reader Services. Funds will be made available for reader services to any client who is enrolled in a training program directed toward achieving his/her vocational goal in which reading is required. The client and the counselor will plan jointly as to the amount of funds required to meet the client's individual reading needs for a specified period. The agreement reached will be incorporated into the client's individualized written rehabilitation plan and the client will be given written authorization specifying the amount which has been authorized and the time period encompassed in the authorization. The client will arrange for his/her readers to bill the Commission for the Blind monthly for the reader service which has actually been provided. The client is responsible for reviewing bills submitted for completeness and accuracy. (1-5-87)

- c. Directly from rehabilitation counselors when the other sources are temporarily unavailable. (1-5-87)

Such services include, but are not limited to, training in the use of the long, white cane; development of effectiveness in nonvisual communication skills including Braille, typing, etc.; training in other appropriate skills needed by the individual to fulfill his/her responsibilities in his/her home community; stimulating affirmative attitudes toward the role of blind persons in our society and their competency to function competitively; and development of readiness to accept or even insist upon equal responsibilities and privileges of citizenship. (1-5-87)
14. Telecommunications, Sensory and Other Technological Aids and Devices. The Commission for the Blind will provide telecommunications, sensory and other technological aids and devices when it has been determined through joint planning that such an aid or device is required to significantly enhance employment opportunities in the area of the vocational goal stated on the client's individualized written rehabilitation plan or significantly improve an employed client's performance so that he/she would not be underemployed. All devices and aids provided under this policy, where appropriate, will be supplied to clients only by persons licensed to do so by the State or, in the cases of newly developed aids and devices, after they meet any applicable engineering or safety standards. (1-5-87)
15. Recruitment and Training Services to Provide New Employment Opportunities in the Fields of Appropriate Public Service Employment. The Commission for the Blind will assist the client to find employment in the areas which are most interesting and appealing to him/her. The Commission for the Blind will provide post employment services when it has been determined such services are necessary to maintain employment, or in the case of an individual who accepted initial employment below their capabilities, to achieve more suitable employment which must be more apt to maintain the individual in employment and which must be closely related to the existing job. (1-5-87)
- a. If new and distinct handicapping problems have arisen or extensive rehabilitation services are required, a new individualized written rehabilitation plan will be completed. (1-5-87)
