Fair market value is that amount of United States money or its equivalent that in all probability a property would exchange hands for, between a willing seller under no compulsion to sell, and an informed, capable buyer; a reasonable time being allowed to consummate the sale, and substantiated by a reasonable down payment or full cash payment. (7-1-93)

a. Growing crops, in the case of a farm or tillable land must be appraised separately from the land. (7-1-93)

b. If there is a market for stocks and bonds, on a stock exchange, in an over-the-counter market, or otherwise, the mean between the highest and lowest quoted selling prices on the date of death is the fair market value per share or bond. If there were no sales on the date of death, the fair market value is determined by taking the weighted average of the means between the highest and lowest sales, on the nearest date before and the nearest date after the date of death, on which dates the stock was traded. The average is to be weighted inversely by the respective number of days between the selling date and the valuation date. (7-1-93)
